FINAL ORDER

The appellant has filed a petition for review of the initial decision, which affirmed the agency's removal action based on her failure to meet a condition of employment. On petition for review, the appellant challenges the administrative judge's finding that the agency established that the appellant's financial irresponsibility rose to the level of “dishonest conduct,” generally challenges the administrative judge’s factual findings, reasserts her argument that her financial issues did not impact her job performance and that the removal penalty was excessive, and reiterates her belief that she proved her affirmative defenses of discrimination based on race and sex, and reprisal for prior protected equal employment opportunity activity. Generally, we grant petitions such as this one only in the following circumstances: the initial decision contains erroneous findings of material fact; the initial decision is based on an erroneous interpretation of statute or regulation or the erroneous application of the law to the facts of the case; the administrative judge’s rulings during either the course of the appeal or the initial decision were not consistent with required procedures or involved an abuse of discretion, and the resulting error affected the outcome of the case; or new and material evidence or legal argument is available that, despite the petitioner’s due diligence, was not available when the record closed. Title 5 of the Code of Federal Regulations, section 1201.115 (5 C.F.R. § 1201.115). After fully considering the filings in this appeal, we conclude that the petitioner has not established any basis under section 1201.115 for granting the petition for review. Therefore, we DENY the petition for review and AFFIRM the initial decision, which is now the Board’s final decision. 5 C.F.R. § 1201.113(b).

¹ A nonprecedential order is one that the Board has determined does not add significantly to the body of MSPB case law. Parties may cite nonprecedential orders, but such orders have no precedential value; the Board and administrative judges are not required to follow or distinguish them in any future decisions. In contrast, a precedential decision issued as an Opinion and Order has been identified by the Board as significantly contributing to the Board's case law. See 5 C.F.R. § 1201.117(c).
