FINAL ORDER

The appellant has filed a petition for review of the initial decision, which sustained the agency's removal action. On petition for review, the appellant argues that the administrative judge incorrectly found that he failed to prove his due process affirmative defense and that the agency's witnesses were not truthful.

¹ A nonprecedential order is one that the Board has determined does not add significantly to the body of MSPB case law. Parties may cite nonprecedential orders, but such orders have no precedential value; the Board and administrative judges are not required to follow or distinguish them in any future decisions. In contrast, a precedential decision issued as an Opinion and Order has been identified by the Board as significantly contributing to the Board's case law. See 5 C.F.R. § 1201.117(c).

Petition for Review (PFR) File, Tab 1 at 6. Generally, we grant petitions such as this one only in the following circumstances: the initial decision contains erroneous findings of material fact; the initial decision is based on an erroneous interpretation of statute or regulation or the erroneous application of the law to the facts of the case; the administrative judge's rulings during either the course of the appeal or the initial decision were not consistent with required procedures or involved an abuse of discretion, and the resulting error affected the outcome of the case; or new and material evidence or legal argument is available that, despite the petitioner's due diligence, was not available when the record closed. Title 5 of the Code of Federal Regulations, section 1201.115 (5 C.F.R. § 1201.115). After fully considering the filings in this appeal, we conclude that the petitioner has not established any basis under section 1201.115 for granting the petition for review. Therefore, we DENY the petition for review. Except as expressly MODIFIED to provide the correct causation standard for the appellant's disparate treatment disability discrimination claim, we AFFIRM the initial decision.

The administrative judge correctly found that the agency proved all five of its charges against the appellant by preponderant evidence, that the appellant failed to establish his affirmative defenses of an alleged due process violation, race and disability discrimination, and reprisal for prior equal employment opportunity activity, and that the agency's chosen penalty of removal promoted the efficiency of the service and was reasonable. Initial Appeal File (IAF), Tab 34, Initial Decision (ID) at 3-53. The appellant's argument on review that the administrative judge incorrectly denied his due process claim concerning his deleted email account is without merit. PFR File, Tab 1 at 6. He has failed to show that he was denied a meaningful opportunity to respond to the charges, as he provided the deciding official with a substantive 41-page written response. IAF, Tab 7 at 58-90. Moreover, it is undisputed that the agency ultimately provided him with his emails after restoring his account and that he had the opportunity to present any evidence disputing the charges to the Board. He failed to do so.

Additionally, in the initial decision, the administrative judge analyzed the appellant's status-based disability discrimination claim as set forth in Southerland v. Department of Defense, 119 M.S.P.R. 566, ¶ 23 (2013), and found that the appellant failed to present preponderant evidence that the agency's action was "based on discrimination due to a disability." ID at 43. However, following the issuance of the initial decision, the Board issued its decision in Pridgen v. Office of Management and Budget, 2022 MSPB 31, wherein we found that, for an appellant to establish a status-based disability discrimination claim, he must prove that his disability was at least a motivating factor in the personnel action. Id., ¶ 40. We agree with the administrative judge's assessment of the evidence below, ID at 43, and further add that the proposing official testified that the appellant's disability played no role in his decision to propose the removal action, nor did he discuss the appellant's disability with the deciding official. IAF, Tab 30, Hearing Compact Disc (HCD) Day 1 (testimony of the proposing official). The deciding official testified similarly, stating that although she was aware of the appellant's medical conditions, she believed that his assertion that his disability was the source of his misconduct was "speculation" and that she did not consider his disability in issuing her decision. IAF, Tab 31, HCD Day 2 (testimony of the deciding official). Based on the foregoing, we modify the initial decision to find that the appellant failed to prove that his disability was at least a motivating factor in his removal.

(2) Judicial or EEOC review of cases involving a claim of discrimination. This option applies to you only if you have claimed that you were affected by an action that is appealable to the Board and that such action was based, in whole or in part, on unlawful discrimination. If so, you may obtain judicial review of this decision—including a disposition of your discrimination claims—by filing a civil action with an appropriate U.S. district court (not the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit), within 30 calendar days after you receive this decision. 5 U.S.C. § 7703(b)(2); see Perry v. Merit Systems Protection Board, 582 U.S. 420 (2017). If you have a representative in this case, and your representative receives this decision before you do, then you must file with the district court no later than 30 calendar days after your representative receives this decision. If the action involves a claim of discrimination based on race, color, religion, sex, national origin, or a disabling condition, you may be entitled to representation by a court-appointed lawyer and to waiver of any requirement of prepayment of fees, costs, or other security. See 42 U.S.C. § 2000e-5(f) and 29 U.S.C. § 794a.

If so, and your judicial petition for review “raises no challenge to the Board’s disposition of allegations of a prohibited personnel practice described in section 2302(b) other than practices described in section 2302(b)(8), or 2302(b)(9)(A)(i), (B), (C), or (D),” then you may file a petition for judicial review either with the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit or any court of appeals of
