FINAL ORDER

The appellant has filed a petition for review of the initial decision, which affirmed the reconsideration decision of the Office of Personnel Management denying her disability retirement application on timeliness grounds. Among her arguments presented on review, the appellant challenges the administrative judge's findings about how untimely her disability retirement application was as well as the administrative judge's weighing of an August 2024 Social Security Disability decision. The appellant also suggests that the administrative judge should have been disqualified from adjudicating this appeal. Generally, we grant petitions such as this one only in the following circumstances: the initial decision contains erroneous findings of material fact; the initial decision is based on an erroneous interpretation of statute or regulation or the erroneous application of the law to the facts of the case; the administrative judge's rulings during either the course of the appeal or the initial decision were not consistent with required procedures or involved an abuse of discretion, and the resulting error affected the outcome of the case; or new and material evidence or legal argument is available that, despite the petitioner's due diligence, was not available when the record closed. Title 5 of the Code of Federal Regulations, section 1201.115 (5 C.F.R. § 1201.115). After fully considering the filings in this appeal, we conclude that the petitioner has not established any basis under section 1201.115 for granting the petition for review. Therefore, we DENY the petition for review and AFFIRM the initial decision, which is now the Board's final decision. 5 C.F.R. § 1201.113(b).

Once again, we have considered the appellant's arguments about the merits of her appeal, including ones about the precise date of her untimely application for disability retirement and the relevance of a Social Security Disability decision. E.g., Petition for Review (PFR) File, Tab 1 at 9. However, we find no basis for reaching a conclusion different than that of the administrative judge. Regarding the former, we further note that the appellant's argument is largely based upon years-old emails submitted for the first time on review. Id. at 18-20. We need not consider that evidence because the appellant has not shown that it was previously unavailable. See Avansino v. U.S. Postal Service, 3 M.S.P.R. 211, 213-14 (1980) (under 5 C.F.R. § 1201.115, the Board generally will not consider evidence submitted for the first time with a petition for review absent a showing that it was unavailable before the record was closed before the administrative judge despite the party's due diligence).

Turning to the appellant's argument about the administrative judge and disqualification, we recognize that the administrative judge disclosed to the parties that she had previously worked on a mediation involving the appellant in a separate case, years earlier. Initial Appeal File, Tab 16. On review, the appellant suggests she was deprived of an opportunity to file a motion to disqualify because the administrative judge did not divulge this until the hearing. PFR File, Tab 1 at 3-4. However, we discern no reason why the appellant could not have moved to disqualify the administrative judge at the time of the hearing or during subsequent months, before the administrative judge issued the initial decision. For that reason, this new argument about disqualification appears to be an untimely one that we need not consider. Banks v. Department of the Air Force, 4 M.S.P.R. 268, 271 (1980) (the Board generally will not consider an argument raised for the first time in a petition for review absent a showing that it is based on new and material evidence not previously available despite the party's due diligence). In any event, we do not find that the administrative judge's work as a Board mediator in a prior case of the appellant's required disqualification in this case.² See generally Baker v. Social Security Administration, 2022 MSPB 27, ¶¶ 7, 20 (discussing the Board's disqualification standards where an administrative judge's impartiality might reasonably be questioned, as well as the Board's standards regarding claims of actual bias).

² Through her attorney, the appellant indicated that they were unsure of the administrative judge's role in the mediation of a prior case. However, the Board's records seem to answer that question. The administrative judge in this appeal was the mediator in the appellant's appeal against the Department of Defense, regarding the appellant's removal from that agency, which settled in or around June 2020. Bennett v. Department of Defense, MSPB Docket No. PH-0752-20-0042-I-1, Initial Appeal File, Tab 8.

NOTICE OF APPEAL RIGHTS³

You may obtain review of this final decision. 5 U.S.C. § 7703(a)(1). By statute, the nature of your claims determines the time limit for seeking such review and the appropriate forum with which to file. 5 U.S.C. § 7703(b). Although we offer the following summary of available appeal rights, the Merit Systems Protection Board does not provide legal advice on which option is most appropriate for your situation and the rights described below do not represent a statement of how courts will rule regarding which cases fall within their jurisdiction. If you wish to seek review of this final decision, you should immediately review the law applicable to your claims and carefully follow all filing time limits and requirements. Failure to file within the applicable time limit may result in the dismissal of your case by your chosen forum.

Please read carefully each of the three main possible choices of review below to decide which one applies to your particular case. If you have questions about whether a particular forum is the appropriate one to review your case, you should contact that forum for more information.

(1) Judicial review in general. As a general rule, an appellant seeking judicial review of a final Board order must file a petition for review with the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit, which must be received by the court within 60 calendar days of the date of issuance of this decision. 5 U.S.C. § 7703(b)(1)(A).

³ Since the issuance of the initial decision in this matter, the Board may have updated the notice of review rights included in final decisions. As indicated in the notice, the Board cannot advise which option is most appropriate in any matter.

If you submit a petition for review to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit, you must submit your petition to the court at the following address:

U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit
717 Madison Place, N.W.

(2) Judicial or EEOC review of cases involving a claim of discrimination. This option applies to you only if you have claimed that you were affected by an action that is appealable to the Board and that such action was based, in whole or in part, on unlawful discrimination. If so, you may obtain judicial review of this decision—including a disposition of your discrimination claims—by filing a civil action with an appropriate U.S. district court (not the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit), within 30 calendar days after you receive this decision. 5 U.S.C. § 7703(b)(2); see Perry v. Merit Systems Protection Board, 582 U.S. 420 (2017). If you have a representative in this case, and your representative receives this decision before you do, then you must file with the district court no later than 30 calendar days after your representative receives this decision. If the action involves a claim of discrimination based on race, color, religion, sex, national origin, or a disabling condition, you may be entitled to representation by a court-appointed lawyer and to waiver of any requirement of prepayment of fees, costs, or other security. See 42 U.S.C. § 2000e-5(f) and 29 U.S.C. § 794a.

If you have a representative in this case, and your representative receives this decision before you do, then you must file with the EEOC no later than 30 calendar days after your representative receives this decision.

other protected activities listed in 5 U.S.C. § 2302(b)(9)(A)(i), (B), (C), or (D). If so, and your judicial petition for review “raises no challenge to the Board’s disposition of allegations of a prohibited personnel practice described in section 2302(b) other than practices described in section 2302(b)(8), or 2302(b)(9)(A)(i), (B), (C), or (D),” then you may file a petition for judicial review either with the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit or any court of appeals of competent jurisdiction.⁴ The court of appeals must receive your petition for review within 60 days of the date of issuance of this decision. 5 U.S.C. § 7703(b)(1)(B).
