¹ A nonprecedential order is one that the Board has determined does not add significantly to the body of MSPB case law. Parties may cite nonprecedential orders, but such orders have no precedential value; the Board and administrative judges are not required to follow or distinguish them in any future decisions. In contrast, a precedential decision issued as an Opinion and Order has been identified by the Board as significantly contributing to the Board's case law. See 5 C.F.R. § 1201.117(c).

FINAL ORDER

The intervenor has filed a petition for review of the initial decision, which reversed a final decision issued by the Office of Personnel Management (OPM) finding that she was entitled to a portion of the Civil Service Retirement System annuity benefits of her former spouse, i.e., the appellant. Generally, we grant petitions such as this one only in the following circumstances: the initial decision contains erroneous findings of material fact; the initial decision is based on an erroneous interpretation of statute or regulation or the erroneous application of the law to the facts of the case; the administrative judge's rulings during either the course of the appeal or the initial decision were not consistent with required procedures or involved an abuse of discretion, and the resulting error affected the outcome of the case; or new and material evidence or legal argument is available that, despite the petitioner's due diligence, was not available when the record closed. Title 5 of the Code of Federal Regulations, section 1201.115 (5 C.F.R. § 1201.115). After fully considering the filings in this appeal, we conclude that the petitioner has not established any basis under section 1201.115 for granting the petition for review. Therefore, we DENY the petition for review and AFFIRM the initial decision, which is now the Board's final decision. 5 C.F.R. § 1201.113(b).

We have considered all of the intervenor's arguments on review; however, we find that none provide a basis to disturb the administrative judge's conclusion that the intervenor did not provide a court order that met the minimum requirements of 5 C.F.R. part 838, subpart C such that it was acceptable for processing by OPM. Petition for Review (PFR) File, Tab 1; Initial Appeal File (IAF), Tab 33, Initial Decision (ID) at 4-7. As set forth in the initial decision, an individual in the intervenor's position may obtain and present a new, clarifying court order to OPM for a new determination. ID at 7 (citing West v. Office of Personnel Management, 105 M.S.P.R. 559, ¶ 15 (2007)).

The intervenor seemingly asserts that she was not given a sufficient opportunity to present her case. PFR File, Tab 1 at 16. To this end, she avers that she was not provided with an opportunity to speak to the administrative judge. Id. We find her assertions unavailing. Indeed, intervenors do not have an independent right to a hearing. 5 C.F.R. § 1201.34(d)(1). Here, because the appellant did not request a hearing, IAF, Tab 1 at 2, the administrative judge decided the matter based on the written record, ID at 2. The administrative judge, however, provided the intervenor with an opportunity to present written evidence and argument prior to the issuance of the initial decision. E.g., IAF, Tab 22 at 1-2, Tab 29 at 1-2. To the extent the intervenor argues that she was improperly excluded from a status conference, she fails to explain how this exclusion affected her substantive rights; indeed, she fails to present any evidence or argument on review sufficient to warrant a different outcome. See Karapinka v. Department of Energy, 6 M.S.P.R. 124, 127 (1981) (explaining that the administrative judge’s procedural error is of no legal consequence unless it is shown to have adversely affected a party’s substantive rights).

Although we acknowledge the severe inequities associated with the circumstances presented, as explained in the initial decision, the intervenor’s remedies lie with the state court, not the Board. Indeed, she may seek an amended court order that she may present to OPM for a new determination. ID at 7; see West, 105 M.S.P.R. 559, ¶ 15; see also 5 C.F.R. § 838.225(a) (permitting “an amended court order pertaining to payment of a portion of the employee annuity”).

(1) Judicial review in general. As a general rule, an appellant seeking judicial review of a final Board order must file a petition for review with the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit, which must be received by the court within 60 calendar days of the date of issuance of this decision. 5 U.S.C. § 7703(b)(1)(A).

If you submit a petition for review to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit, you must submit your petition to the court at the following address:

U.S. Court of Appeals

This option applies to you only if you have claimed that you were affected by an action that is appealable to the Board and that such action was based, in whole or in part, on unlawful discrimination. If so, you may obtain judicial review of this decision—including a disposition of your discrimination claims—by filing a civil action with an appropriate U.S. district court (not the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit), within 30 calendar days after you receive this decision. 5 U.S.C. § 7703(b)(2); see Perry v. Merit Systems Protection Board, 582 U.S. 420 (2017). If you have a representative in this case, and your representative receives this decision before you do, then you must file with the district court no later than 30 calendar days after your representative receives this decision. If the action involves a claim of discrimination based on race, color, religion, sex, national origin, or a disabling condition, you may be entitled to representation by a court-appointed lawyer and to waiver of any requirement of prepayment of fees, costs, or other security. See 42 U.S.C. § 2000e-5(f) and 29 U.S.C. § 794a.

If so, and your judicial petition for review “raises no challenge to the Board’s disposition of allegations of a prohibited personnel practice described in section 2302(b) other than practices described in section 2302(b)(8), or 2302(b)(9)(A)(i), (B), (C), or (D),” then you may file a petition for judicial review either with the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit or any court of appeals of competent jurisdiction.³ The court of appeals must receive your petition for
