DATE: January 24, 2024

THIS FINAL ORDER IS NONPRECEDENTIAL¹

Sally E. Boarman, Baltimore, Maryland, pro se.

Jaymin Parekh, Baltimore, Maryland, for the agency.

FINAL ORDER

The appellant has filed a petition for review of the initial decision, which dismissed for lack of jurisdiction her appeal of a 7-day suspension, which she argued was in retaliation for filing an equal employment opportunity complaint and resulted from the agency's failure to accommodate her alleged disability. On petition for review, the appellant argues that, after the administrative judge issued the initial decision, the agency suspended her for 14 days. Generally, we grant petitions such as this one only in the following circumstances: the initial decision contains erroneous findings of material fact; the initial decision is based on an erroneous interpretation of statute or regulation or the erroneous application of the law to the facts of the case; the administrative judge's rulings during either the course of the appeal or the initial decision were not consistent with required procedures or involved an abuse of discretion, and the resulting error affected the outcome of the case; or new and material evidence or legal argument is available that, despite the petitioner's due diligence, was not available when the record closed. Title 5 of the Code of Federal Regulations, section 1201.115 (5 C.F.R. § 1201.115). After fully considering the filings in this appeal, we conclude that the petitioner has not established any basis under section 1201.115 for granting the petition for review. Therefore, we DENY the petition for review and AFFIRM the initial decision, which is now the Board's final decision. 5 C.F.R. § 1201.113(b).

On review, the appellant argues that new evidence, in the form of a proposed 14-day suspension, shows that the Board now has jurisdiction over her appeal. Petition for Review (PFR) File, Tab 1 at 4-5, 8-10. Generally, the Board will not consider arguments raised for the first time in a petition for review absent a showing that it is based on new and material evidence not previously available despite the party's due diligence. Lovoy v. Department of Health and Human Services, 94 M.S.P.R. 571, ¶ 30 (2003). Here, the appellant could not have known of the proposed suspension at the time the record closed below, because the agency issued it 6 days after the initial decision was issued in this matter. PFR File, Tab 1 at 9; Initial Appeal File (IAF), Tab 5, Initial Decision at 1. Further, the appellant's new argument implicates the Board's jurisdiction over this appeal, and the issue of jurisdiction is always before the Board and may be raised any time during a Board proceeding. Lovoy, 94 M.S.P.R. 571, ¶ 30.

The proposed 14-day suspension is based on alleged instances of failure to follow time and attendance/telework procedures that occurred after the appellant served the underlying 7-day suspension at issue in the instant appeal. Id. at 9-10; IAF, Tab 1 at 10-12. Assuming the agency has issued a decision to suspend the appellant, we will not combine these two suspensions for jurisdictional purposes because, although there is overlap between the charges, the specifications supporting those charges are based on separate events and circumstances. See Edwards v. U.S. Postal Service, 112 M.S.P.R. 196, ¶ 8 (2009) (recognizing that the Board has left open the possibility that non-consecutive suspensions may be combined when (1) the suspensions are based on the same reason, and (2) there is evidence that the agency attempted to circumvent Board jurisdiction by imposing multiple suspensions of 14 days or less); see also Jennings v. Merit Systems Protection Board, 59 F.3d 159, 161 (Fed. Cir. 1995) (“Because these two suspensions arose out of separate events and circumstances, they cannot be combined to constitute a single suspension for the purposes of determining jurisdiction.”); Bradley v. U.S. Postal Service, 96 M.S.P.R. 539, ¶¶ 8, 17 (2004) (explaining that an appellant’s 12-day placement in off-duty status and subsequent 14-day suspension arose from separate events and circumstances, and thus the two actions could not be combined for jurisdictional purposes).

Therefore, we affirm the initial decision.
