FINAL ORDER

The appellant has filed a petition for review of the remand initial decision, which affirmed the agency's removal action after the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit affirmed the Board's final order in part, vacated in part, and remanded to the Western Regional Office for review of the penalty. Lee v. Department of Homeland Security, No. 2024-1334, 2024 WL 3634215 (Fed. Cir.

[1] A nonprecedential order is one that the Board has determined does not add significantly to the body of MSPB case law. Parties may cite nonprecedential orders, but such orders have no precedential value; the Board and administrative judges are not required to follow or distinguish them in any future decisions. In contrast, a precedential decision issued as an Opinion and Order has been identified by the Board as significantly contributing to the Board's case law. See 5 C.F.R. § 1201.117(c).

Aug. 2, 2024); see Lee v. Department of Homeland Security, MSPB Docket No. SF-0752-18-0187-I-1, Final Order (Nov. 13, 2023). On petition for review, the appellant argues that the administrative judge erred in determining that the penalty of removal was within the bound of reason as the maximum reasonable penalty.[2] Generally, we grant petitions such as this one only in the following circumstances: the initial decision contains erroneous findings of material fact; the initial decision is based on an erroneous interpretation of statute or regulation or the erroneous application of the law to the facts of the case; the administrative judge's rulings during either the course of the appeal or the initial decision were not consistent with required procedures or involved an abuse of discretion, and the resulting error affected the outcome of the case; or new and material evidence or legal argument is available that, despite the petitioner's due diligence, was not available when the record closed. Title 5 of the Code of Federal Regulations, section 1201.115 (5 C.F.R. § 1201.115). After fully considering the filings in this appeal, we conclude that the petitioner has not established any basis under section 1201.115 for granting the petition for review.[3] Therefore, we DENY the petition

[2] In addition, the appellant challenges the merits of the agency's charges on review. Petition for Review File, Tab 1. However, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit affirmed the Board with respect to the charges and therefore that issue is not open for review. Lee, 2024 WL 3634215, at *2-4.

[3] Though not raised by the appellant, we note that the remand initial decision contains a notable inconsistency. Lee v. Department of Homeland Security, MSPB Docket No. SF-0752-18-0187-M-1, Remand Initial Decision. On the one hand, the administrative judge repeatedly and expressly indicated that she was not considering a 2015 suspension for purposes of his past work record, id. at 8 & n.1, his clarity of notice, id. at 9, and his potential for rehabilitation, id. at 9-10. On the other hand, the administrative judge concluded her decision with a brief summary in which she listed aggravating factors as including the appellant having prior discipline of record. Id. at 11. We have relied on the administrative judge's more fulsome analysis and repeated indications that she was not considering the appellant's 2015 suspension. We have not relied on the cursory summary that suggests otherwise. To the extent that the administrative judge indicated that the appellant had prior discipline that was an aggravating factor in that summary, we construe that to be a typographical error. Even with no prior discipline, we find that removal remains a reasonable penalty for the charged and proven misconduct.

for review and AFFIRM the initial decision, which is now the Board's final decision. 5 C.F.R. § 1201.113(b).

NOTICE OF APPEAL RIGHTS[4]

You may obtain review of this final decision. 5 U.S.C. § 7703(a)(1). By statute, the nature of your claims determines the time limit for seeking such review and the appropriate forum with which to file. 5 U.S.C. § 7703(b). Although we offer the following summary of available appeal rights, the Merit Systems Protection Board does not provide legal advice on which option is most appropriate for your situation and the rights described below do not represent a statement of how courts will rule regarding which cases fall within their jurisdiction. If you wish to seek review of this final decision, you should immediately review the law applicable to your claims and carefully follow all filing time limits and requirements. Failure to file within the applicable time limit may result in the dismissal of your case by your chosen forum.

Please read carefully each of the three main possible choices of review below to decide which one applies to your particular case. If you have questions about whether a particular forum is the appropriate one to review your case, you should contact that forum for more information.

(1) Judicial review in general. As a general rule, an appellant seeking judicial review of a final Board order must file a petition for review with the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit, which must be received by the court within 60 calendar days of the date of issuance of this decision. 5 U.S.C. § 7703(b)(1)(A).

[4] Since the issuance of the initial decision in this matter, the Board may have updated the notice of review rights included in final decisions. As indicated in the notice, the Board cannot advise which option is most appropriate in any matter.

If you submit a petition for review to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit, you must submit your petition to the court at the following address:

(2) Judicial or EEOC review of cases involving a claim of discrimination. This option applies to you only if you have claimed that you were affected by an action that is appealable to the Board and that such action was based, in whole or in part, on unlawful discrimination. If so, you may obtain judicial review of this decision—including a disposition of your discrimination claims—by filing a civil action with an appropriate U.S. district court (not the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit), within 30 calendar days after you receive this decision. 5 U.S.C. § 7703(b)(2); see Perry v. Merit Systems Protection Board, 582 U.S. 420 (2017). If you have a representative in this case, and your representative receives this decision before you do, then you must file with the district court no later than 30 calendar days after your representative receives this decision. If the action involves a claim of discrimination based on race, color, religion, sex, national origin, or a disabling condition, you may be entitled to representation by a court-appointed lawyer and to waiver of any requirement of prepayment of fees, costs, or other security. See 42 U.S.C. § 2000e-5(f) and 29 U.S.C. § 794a.

If you have a representative in this case, and your representative receives this decision before you do, then you must file with the EEOC no later than 30 calendar days after your representative receives this decision.

other protected activities listed in 5 U.S.C. § 2302(b)(9)(A)(i), (B), (C), or (D). If so, and your judicial petition for review "raises no challenge to the Board's disposition of allegations of a prohibited personnel practice described in section 2302(b) other than practices described in section 2302(b)(8), or 2302(b)(9)(A)(i), (B), (C), or (D)," then you may file a petition for judicial review either with the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit or any court of appeals of competent jurisdiction.[5] The court of appeals must receive your petition for review within 60 days of the date of issuance of this decision. 5 U.S.C. § 7703(b)(1)(B).
