

Since MSPB does not allow a career tenured employee her due process rights (due to blindly accepting the agency's false misrepresentations), even when presented with proof of an employee's career tenure, and even while not disputing that proof), there should be an independent party determining, without prejudice, this "life or death" issue for an employee who is wrongfully terminated.